

Speakers

Sociologist and jurist David Koussens is professor at the Faculty of Law of the Université de Sherbrooke, where he is also holds the Research Chair in Law, Religion and Secularism and is director of the Centre d'études du religieux contemporain. His research interests include secularism in France and Québec and the transformation of belief systems in contemporary society.

T. Scarlet Jory is a university graduate with Bachelor degrees in Classics/Anthropology and in Honors Religious Studies/Adult Education. She is working on her Masters Degree in Religion with a dual focus on Paganism and East Asian philosophies. She is also a spiritual leader in the Montreal Pagan community; she follows a syncretic path blending Celtic Wicca with East Asian philosophies that she has been studying. She is a published author with two books in print and several articles. She is called a wordsmith by her readers: a wordsmith with a calling to teach and to encourage others to love learning.